HONGKONG, WEDNESDAY, JULY 2, 1890.

SEVERAL matters of very considerable general importance cropped up at the annual meeting of shareholders of the Hongkong and Kowloon Wharf and Godown Co., Ld., held on Saturday last which invite public comment. Although of late years, thanks chiefly to the Hongkong Telegraph, boards of directors of limited liability companies in this colony have not been permitted to enjoy their snug and lucrative sinecures without challenge and in the peace and comfort of the good old times—when it was worse than high treason for anybody but a faipan to dare to open his mouth and assert that he had an opinion of his own -it is nevertheless "a rare occurrence for an influential board s that of the Wharf and Godown Co. to be subjected to the cataclysm of trenchant and outspoken criticism with which they were assailed by Mr. C. S. TAYLOR last Saturday. Let us calmly and practically review the situation, and perhaps we may be able to give our readers, a clearer comprehension of the actual state of affairs than was afforded by the Directors' report and Mr. TAYLOR's supplementary statement. After a very careful examination of the Company's published accounts and those prepared by Mr. TAYLOR, we have arrived at the conclusion that the questions at issue between the two are more sentimental than actual differences. It is a matter of ment of accounts for 1889, taken by itself, -about. which there cannot be any the alternative of at days' hard labour, must have been something like the Sphynx puzzle to the general body of shareholders; we confess that, until after a careful analysis of the accounts for the two anything in the latter objection we are not previous years, it puzzled us exceedingly. But taken in conjunction with the statements for 1887 and 1888 it is comprehensible enough, if not quite a model of what might reasonably be expected from a modern accountant, backed up by two highly remunerated professional auditors. What the account clearly shows is that the net profits for the year's working, after paying an ad interim dividend of $2 per share ($40,500), amounted to the paltry sum of $7,218.41, out of gross receipts totalling $203.450, and when it is considered that in the year 1887 the net profits were $76,429,84, out of gross receipts amounting to $154,973.28, and in 1888 the total earnings were $204,494.09 and the net profits $94,255.25, we venture to think that Mr. TAYLOR or any other shareholder would have had good grounds in demanding a clear and thorough explanation of what, prima facic, appears a most extraordinary circumstance and is certainly a legitimate grievance for the shareholders, representing an absolute loss, taking the figures of 1888 as a basis of calculation, of over $40,000. No explanation of this extraordinary increase in the cost of carrying on the Company's business was asked for, and none was given, if we except a remark made by the Chairman (the Hon. J. J. KESWICK) that after the 30th of June the heavy 'rental of about $40,000 per annum for the West Point godowns would not again be incurred in its entirety. Now, to our way of thinking this was the weakest spot in the accounts, but Mr. TAYLOR concentrated his attack on the Directors for having credited a new Profit and Loss account with $352,000 as an asset representing the value of the West Point property and the Reclamation there. In this connection he argued that the only money actually earned had been $71,000, from the sale of the P. & O. Co.'s wharf, etc., at West Point, and contended that as a set-off to this there was a loss of $66,000 on the sale of the West Point property, which had been brought into Reclamation Account. Practically this is the only difference between Mr. TAYLOR and the Directors so far as the accounts are concerned, his other figures being mere details, the exact accuracy or otherwise of which it is not worth while discussing, as they really have little, if any, bearing on the object he had in view. We may add, however, that we have taken the trouble to go through the Company's balance sheets for the past three years and compared them with the figures in Mr. TAYLOR's summary, and we find that, excepting in the instance we have just referred to, they substantially agree. There is therefore only the West Point property to deal with, and that appears a simple matter. The Directors claim that a profit has been realised on this property of $352,838.48, whereas Mr. TAYLOR contends that a loss of $66,549.03 has resulted. The matter actually stands in this position -The property was originally purchased for $600,000, and the godowns were disposed of for $500,000. Of the remaining portion two lots were sold to Mr. Ho Tung and Mr. Sui Lock Hing for $49,600 and $155,000 respectively, on which bargain money to the extent of 839,600 was paid, and the balance is secured by deed of mortgage. Another lot was purchased by the Government for the widening of the tion. Praya at $94,500, still leaving what is described as Reclamation No. 4, and which comprises 45,000 feet with splendid water frontage, the property of the Company. Mr. TAYLOR treats this as an asset of no value, whereas the Directors estimate it to be worth $171,063.52, after allowing $74,223.98 for balance of cost of reclamation. The detailed account on the 31st December last stood as follows:-WEST POINT PROPERTY ACCOUNT. To Value as per last Report $110,371.17 809.87 $109.461.10 ... Expended during 1884. 350,838.58 Profit and Loss Account LIABILITIES. y Reclamation No.: Ho Reclamation No. s Sui Lock Hing 31,000 .. 5 Reclamation No. 2 Government 13,900 ., 5 Reclamation No. 4] 44,575 .. 51 $245,162.50

It will now be seen how the balance of methodrather than of fact, that Mr. TAYLOR | $421,344.33 to credit of Profit and Loss sostrongly objected to, a technical difference | arises. But Mr. TAYLOR objects to the of opinion on a question of accounts which | Directors taking over the unsold portion could easily have been adjusted without of the Reclamation, and urges that even much argument. The Company's state- if they are entitled to treat it as an asset possible doubt—they are not justified in valuing it at such a high figure as $5.50 per foot, as what they sold only realised $4 and $5 respectively. Whether there is in a position to say, but the reasonable inference is that the Directors would, place the estimate as low as possible, and it should not be overlooked that the marine frontage must render this lot more valuable than those disposed of to the Government and the Chinese. We must confess that we had very grave doubts as to the advisability of treating these items as matters of Profit and Loss in the way that has been done in the latest statement of accounts, but it appears that both the West Point and P. & O. properties were purchased with the ntention of being sold again at profit, the main object being to secure the wharfage and other business of the vendors, and under such circumstances we can see no strong objection to the course pursued. We do, however, see very serious objections to any Company paying a dividend that has not been legitimately earned, and for which, as Mr. TAYLOR very properly pointed out, there was actually no money available. That, however, was a matter for the shareholders and so long as they are satisfied nobody. else has a right to complain: (To be continued.)

DEATH OF MR. ERNEST DEACON

(Special telegram to Hongkong Telegraph.)

CANTON, 2nd July, 1890. Canton deplores the untimely loss of Ernest Dencon a noble specimen of the British merchant, an English gentleman par excellence, a truly honest and upright man, benevolent, magnanimous, and who was incapable of an unworthy thought or action. The steamship Hankow conveys the remains of our representative merchant to Hongkong, for burial in the Happy Valley .-- Mr. Deacon's sudden death when hardly past the prime of life has aroused much sympathy among the many who knew him in Hongkong. He was an old resident in the Far East, having come out some twenty years ago to join his elder brothers, who had founded the great firm of which he was until yesterday the head. He was a prominent man both in Canton, Hongkong, and Macao, having been for some time Chairman of the Municipal Councilat the first-named place, He only returned a month or two ago from a trip home, and his death, which was due to Bright's disease, was to a great extent unexpected, although he had been severely attacked with dysentery for the last ten noon in the Protestant Cemetery, Happy Valley, was attended by many leading merchants and other friends. Mrs. Deacon is left with a large

From home papers received yesterday w observe that the cricket match, Gentlemen of England v. Oxford University, in which our local "crack" Mr. E. J. Coxon played for the former, resulted in favor of the Gentlemen by 141 runs. Coxon made a fair show, considering it was his dibut in a first-class match, scoring to in the first and 2t in the second innings, an he was credited with a couple of catches in the second innings of the University. Coxon's bowling was tried without effect; he bowled three overs for five runs and was then taken off, one of his deliveries being, "no-balled." And now there are lots of feather-bed cricketers on the war-path, who say they knew all the time that Coxon's bowling was unfair. Well, we are vain enough to consider ourselves no mean judge of the noble game, and we have seen Ernest Coxon bowl as much as anybody out here, but beyond a somewhat peculiar delivery; not uncommon with left-handers, we certainly never noticed anything approaching "throwing" or "shying" as the Mandarins can make use of s ecial in his style. Umpire Webb's opinion on a question of bowling or throwing-which does not crop up on an average once in three seasons-is of no more value than that of any other cricketer who knows the game, and in all. probability he is the only umpire in England who will object to Coxon's delivery.

A CORRESPONDENT writes from Ningpo to the N. C. Daily News on June 28th :- "The last three days have been unbearably hot out of doors, in spite of the fresh breeze that has prevailed from the S.E., and all Ningpo is profusely perspiring. "As a result of the recent heavy rains we have had little or no flood tides to speak of, and in consequence of the swollen state of the river, boats from the interior have been unable to pass under the bridges. The steamers Kowshing, Kigneteen, and Ichang appear to obtain a fairly proportionate number of native passengers, though, I think, the first named vessel is rather the favourite. Upon the arrival of the Kowshing at 6 o'clock this morning there was the usual wild rush of the great unwashed to get on board as soon as she touched the pontoon, the result being that two unfortunate coolies were bushed over into the water between the vessel's side and the pontoon. As neither of them reached the surface after sinking it is to be gurmised that they were sucked under the pontoon. This dual fatality will not of course have the slightest beneficial effect upon the ignorant horde of coolies who congregate every morning upon the pontoon bridges, ready, when the gates are open, to charge frantically on board the arriving steamer. The local police ought to be able to abate the nuisance. If no action is taken by those responsible, further accidents and fatalities will eventuate."

HUMPHREYS v. HEWRTT & CO. Mr, W. G. Humphreys sued Messes. Hewett & Co. for $228.86. due on account.—Mr. Wilkinson appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Gedge

Mr. Humphreys stated that the defendants purchased a quantity of Belgian bar iron from him in January and February last, the terms being cash before delivery, to clear within two months of arrival. The iron was stored in the Kowloon godowns, and a portion was taken delivery of the 8th February. On the 2nd ult. the defendants declined to take delivery of all that remained, on the ground that some of it was damaged, A sum of $228 was therefore withheld by defendants. The fron was ordinarily rusty, through having lain in the godown so long. Mr. Osborne, secretary to the Hongkong and Kowloon Wharf and Godown Company said that the godown warrants for iron invariably contained a clause that the iron might be "all more or less rusty." Some of the iron in question seemed to be sea-damaged. For the defence, Mr. H. W. Dick, of Messis.

Hewettand Company, stated that there was considerable delay in weighing the iron, owing to Mr. Humphreys' man not attending at the godowns. Apparently the damage to the iron had been caused by acid.

Mr. J. D. Hutchinson, merchant, said that he had examined the iron. It was badly rusty-old

Mr. Gedge submitted that the plaintiffs had failed to deliver the iron, even if it had been in good condition. Mr. Wilkinson contended that the defendants, by retaining the godown warrants, were unable to repudiate the contract. His lordship, in giving judgment said that he assumed delivery to be completed when the godown warrants were handed over and the delay in informing plaintiffs of the damage put defendants out of Court: Judgment would there-fore be given for plaintiff, with costs.

Nobody interfered with, witness while he was up stairs. There were about 40 men in the gang. Witness was custodian of the large entrance door key to the shop. His master had recovered nothing of the $10,000 worth of valuables taken by the burglars. He saw the dead bodies of a man and a woman who had been killed by the burglars.

In cross-examination witness said he had seen Chen Ngok this morning. An official, named Loh, under General Fong, sent for and ordered him to come to Hongkong as a witness in this casso. When he went up on the roof he did not see the thieves. It was just when they first broke into the house, threatened his master, and went with him to the strong-room, that he saw them clearly. It was not a fact that he was so frightened as not to see anything at all. He did not know whether las master was in possession of the keys of the strong-room on the night in question. The other fokis were sleeping inside the strong-room that might. He did not see the thieves carrying ladders. He had heard the names of the notorious burglars before, Man Won, Li Pi-tsz and others. The Mandarin's gunboat brought him down here yesterday.

Cheung King Cheung, keeper of the Ching Kut pawnshop strong-room key, said he was sleeping, on the night in question, inside the strong-room. He and his companions barricaded the door as soon as they heard the thieves breaking into the room. Li Pi Tsz, Man Won, and ten others entered the room through a hole. which they had made over the top of the door. The prisoner had a torch in his left hand and a revolver in his right hand. He drove all of them into a corner of the room. The whole gang came in later on, broke open the safe and took all the valuables that were inside. After the prisoner left the strong-room he heard eight on ten reports of firegorms. The thieves took over an hour to remove the contents of the strong-room. He saw the dead bodies of a man and woman. They were both fellow-villagers of the master of the pawn-shop. The bodies were found lying in the 'street alter the burglars had decamped. The prisoner was wearing his jacket in the ordinary way, but it was not buttoned up. He last saw the prisoner on the night of the burglary. The property stolen comprised opium, pearls, and gold_ornanients, of which none had been re-

In Cross-examination witness stated, that the burglars took only lialf of the goods stowed in the strong-room. The Mandarin named Loh. who was sitt ng in court, ordered him to come and give evidence. Although it was a year since the affair, he was still able to remember it owing to the fact that he was amongst those whose lives had been threatened by the burglars.

Chai Sum, a boatman of Tong-an village, stated he had lived there for many years. When he heard the gong he ran towards the pawnshop, but could not ereach it because he was shot at and wounded by the robbers standing outside. He saw the hawker, who gave evidence at the last flearing, shot at and fall wounded. As soon as he was wounded he sank down on the road and was soon assisted home by villagers.

Mr. Reece said he had two witnesses who belonged to the prisoner's native village who would give weighty evidence; but with a view to taking up as little time as possible he would not call any more witnesses unless so desired by his Worship? .

At his Worship's request Lay Kum, a farm labourer was, called and stated that he, knew the, prisorfer, who had lived in the same house with him for several years. Prisoner was a notorious thief: He had not seen him since the great Toong-an burglary. The morning after the burglary he saw the prisoner in his house, about six o'clock in the morning. Witness was the prisoner's elder brother. On the 26th of May 1889 at about 11 o'clock p.m. the prisoner came to his house and of Nagasaki. The temples in Nikko are very brought with him a lot of lewelry, clothing and opium. Several men were with him. When he opened the door to him he said he had just done a hig job at the pawnshop in Toong-an. Witness then said that he would report him to the authorities. As soon as he said that, he (prisoner) took away the things and never returned. Prisoner said he had killed two persons and wounded three or four others, and spoke of it as a great achievement. He made no offer to share the property with him (witness) His village was about two hours walk from Toong-an. Some days before his brother came back with the plunder he heard about the robbery at the pawnshop. The burglary took place on the 26th of May, and the same night he saw, and, scolded him about it. He heard that his brother and Man Won had entered into partnership to commit the Toong-an burglary. In fact it was the prisoner who told him about it several days prior to the affair He had nothing more to say and would like his Worship to sentence him. When the witness told him that he would report to the officials he said nothing, but promptly decamped with his confederates. That conversation took place about observed the clothing, jewelry, opium and firearms which was carried in bags.

Cross-examined the witness stated, that prisoner was a professional burglar and did not often inform him of his nocturnal expeditions. He was only told that the prisoner was a great thief. Being old it was difficult for him to remember anything but the day of the burglary. General Fong sent for and ordered him to come to Hongkong to give evidence in this case. An official named Loh was commander of the gunboat that broughts him down here. He said that the prisoner came back at 11 o'clock, because he was fold that that was the time. There was no clock in the village, and he himself could not read the clock.

Re-examined witness stated, that the burglary was committed about cock-crow and the prisoner came home flor very long before day-break. Man . Won, the notorious robber, was wit prisoner when he came home that night, brother (prisoner) mentioned to him that Man Won was in the swim with him.

LETTERS FROM JAPAN. (FROM A LADY CORRESPONDENT.)

Probably the most delightful trip to be taken Nikko. Our party has just "done" it and so I my impressions.

Armed with passports and a full purse we boarded a train at Yokohama at ten in the morning and arrived at Ulsonomyija in the afternoon of the same day; we put up there for the right in a little tea house, with a view to setting out on the morrow on a 25 miles inricksha ride to Nikko. As soon as we were comfortably installed at this way-side inn the everlasting tea and sponge cake were set down before us, with the result that in less than fifteen minutes it was all gone, so hungry were we after our long fast in the railroad cars.

The dinner set before us at this inn was surprising, and showed that we were by no means the first Europeans to visit the town. menu included chicken, wild duck, eggs and beef we expected, and exquisitely clean. The next morning, after doing justice to a capital breakfast, we left Ulsonomija for the far-famed Nikko. The road runs straight through an avenue of magnificent trees, which is broken only by small villages on the outskirts of forests. at the foot of hills, or hard-by a stretch of cultivated fields. For half the distance gigantic pine, cedar and cypress trees line the avenue, that a people born and brought up in a land so which towards the latter part give way to the wonderfully blessed by nature should have, what stately cedar; here it is that the road becomes most people term marvellous artistic inspiration. enchanting owing to the fact that the long ornamental branches of venerable cedars interlace one another, thereby forming an arch overhead. Century after century these stately cedars have raised their majestic tops higher and higher; winter winds, scorching sun, torrents of rain and pelting hail have all contributed more to the benefit of these triumphs of Nature, than to their destruction. But man, how is it with him? Consider the generations of poor, frail humanity in this strain you'll 'say I'm simply a wild that have passed away-gone, gone forever; enthusiast revelling in superfluous verbiage while these majestic veterans of the forest have year by year lifted, higher and higher, their that can command interminable theories to stately heads towards that Haven whither all should go, when this brief span of life has closed | self. But bear with me, my dear sir, I'll take and we are-gone!

I continue my story of Nikko. It was about three Nikko the illustrious, Nikko the fair. At in the afternoon when we arrived at Nikko for revoir. we often got out of our 'rickshas and footed it, as the Yankees say. The only refreshment of our ponies (the coolies) was an occasional cup of tea and a biscuit or basin of rice as they plodded along these five and twenty miles. The endurance of these poor creatures is wonderful. Surely their lives must be short. Poor things! We, too, were not over-fed on this journey, having to content ourselves with scraps of bread, in the vicinity, the present being one of the years, fruit, rice and eggs, and green tea. But oh I these. scraps of "chow"! How enjoyable they were as compared with a stereotyped meal in the heart of civilization. The trammels of society cast off, we become natural, in other words free. Freedom! one day of this freedom is worth a life-time of fettered conventional so-called civilization. We heard that it snows heavily at Nikko in the months of December and January. We put up at the Nikko Hotel, which is built on a hillock outside the town. The first thing we saw of interest at Nikko was a red lacquered bridge which is ordinarily closed, but opened on special occasions. A bridge though, which is used I'r daily traffic. The bed of a waterfall runs beneath it and little hills forms a suitable background. The day we arrived, we had only time to "do" one joss-house, the temple of Sambutsudah, which means in Japanese "the temple of the three gods." In the pillar, a memorial presentation from the saints gaudy externally, covered with red and gold laco ier with green and grey and other colors freely interspersed. The following day we "did the temple of Joshuyo. When the temple's bell rings out the hour of four, visitors must depart in coordance with Japanese "olo custom," for the temple doors must then be shut. We specially noticed a five storied pagoda effectively colored with red and gold Incquer which gave it a very gorgeous appearance. The stately cedars at this place reminded me of the biblical cedars of Lebanon: the cedars that are, the cedars that have been, and the cedars that will bo when our lives are over and we shall have passed away. The next morning we started for Chinzenia which is about 15 English miles from Nikko. Chinzenji is largely patronised by tourists in summer as it is somewhat cooler than Nikko description. Although I visited it in mid-winter when the ground was covered with snow and icicles were dangling from the trees, still, l enjoyed it. So bracing and raw was the air that I felt I could walk my 20 miles a day without fatigue. To "do" this trip, I engaged a chair, officers and instructors to whose diligent efforts my companion and native guide accompanying the present high efficiency of the Manchu foreignthe time of the cock-crow in the morning. He | mc on horse-back. What with the jolting of the sedan chair and the fractiousness of the ironin uthed ponies we found it more agreeable to walk, in fact at certain parts of the road it was impossible to ride for occasionally we came to places where, owing to heavy rains, the road had given way, just leaving sufficient space for s h man being to pass with back against the mountain side, face towards the roaning torrent below and eyes up-lifted towards heaven in fewent prayers that He would preserve a poor sinful mortal from sudden, awful, destruction. So frightened was I, that after passing one of these y wning chasms my poor heart was all of a flatter, and sure the hairs of my head almost turned while. That it stood on end like the crest of the sacred cockatoo goes without the saying. But I have said it, though. Never mi d, its only an Irishism emitted by one of Trin's fair maids. We arrived at Chirzenii in the afternoon and put up at one of the tea houses built on the border of the lake. Here, as in other native inns, we were quite comfortable. After tiffin, the following day, we went across the Li Yun, a shrimp-catcher, said he was ordered lake in a boat. We went there, though unwittingly, and for the "sell," as you gentlemen call it, we were to a certain extent compensated, for from the top of one of the many high hills in the neighbourhood we obtained a grand view of Nikko and its environs. There, before our eyes lay the busy little town clinging, as it were, to the mountain's side and threatening ever moment to fall with a crash into the pretty vale below, crowded with those lovely, evergreen, triumphs of Nature-the pine, the cypress and The bed-rooms, too, were superior to what the cedar. INSPECTION OF THE CANTON "BRAVES."

In the Peking Gazette of May 74th is a report from Li Han-chang, Viceroy of the Liang Kuang province, giving an account of a review recently held by him of the troops stationed at Canton and in which, according to rotation, a general inspection of the provincial forces should be held. Prefacing his report by observing that although in times of peace it is by proficiency in archery and riding that preferment is obtained, yet when the tug of war comes it is solely by means o arms of precision such as rifles and cannon that victory is won, he states that in accordance with this theory he had given strict orders for all the troops to be drilled in the use of foreign fire-arms, &c. On the 26th and 27th February last, accompanied by the high military officers of the province he held a review of the various Manchu garrison troops, including portions of the Naval lovely view is to be had from a neighbouring brigade. These bodies of men presented a very sturdy and soldierly appearance, and showed by the precision of their evolution a thorough knowledge of drill. In archery practice on horse and on foot with "six-strength" bows the percentage 'scoring was over 90, whilst the various exhibitions of wrestling, spear practice, riding grounds of this temple we saw a large bronze clinging to the horse's side, etc., were all smartly and cleverly executed. A few days later the Viceroy and the Acting Governor, Yu Chib-k'ai, inspected the Chinese contingent of the garrison of Canton with a number of troops quartered in the vicinity. The greater portion of these had been drilled in the use of breechloading guns, and others with native field-pieces. in foreign style but with Chinese words of command. Their formation was excellent and their weapons thoroughly efficient. The rifle, lingal, and archery practice gave scores of from 80 to go per cent, in some cases the highest possible marks being obtained. The regulars of the old army organisation were put through a number of evolutions on the old system, including mounted archery exercises with sword and shield and so forth, in in which they displayed considerable proficiency. The more descriving were rewarded on the spot, whilst those who betrayed ignorance of their and the mountain scenery fairly surpasses duties were either reprimanded or dismissed the service. A portion of the Naval forces absent at the time on special service will be reviewed and reported on at some future occasion.

In a postscript memorial the Viceroy applies, in accordance with precedent, for rewards to the drilled battulions is to be ascribed.
